Government Accountability Office, 2006 OCLC Number: (OCoLC)66909721 Subject: Identification numbers, Personal -- United States. Excerpt: . . . Some banks contract out services, such as Internet banking, check imaging, telephone banking, and debit and ATM processing services. Officials from a securities firm told us that they contracted with software data vendors for the development and maintenance of specific data products. Tax preparation representatives told us that some individual tax preparers may contract with or use electronic return originators 9 (EROs). Some financial sector regulators and industry representatives had conducted surveys to determine the types of services being contracted by the financial services industry. In 2004, economists from the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City, Missouri, found that certain types of banks relied on third-party vendors to provide an array of services, 10 such as electronic banking and payment processing. In addition, NYSE and NASD conducted a joint survey in 2004 of a select number of their members. The survey revealed that some of their member firms routinely contracted out accounting, finance, administrative, and information technology functions. NASD has specific restrictions that prohibit its members from contracting certain functions, such as supervisory and compliance activities. Banking, investment, telecommunication, and tax preparation officials we Private Sector Companies interviewed said that they share SSNs with their contractors only for We Interviewed Only Share limited purposes and even then, only when it is necessary or unavoidable. SSNs with Contractors for In general, most of the financial services companies we spoke to said they Limited Purposes shared SSNs with contractors to assist with services involving employee background checks, debt collections, fraud prevention, accessing credit reports, and information technology, such.
