It is not until near the close of the tenth century that we find a positive record of voyages to this continent. An Icelandic sea-rover of that date, driven out of his course by storms, reached Greenland, which must then have enjoyed a far more genial climate than it has now; and his report of the country led other Norsemen to visit it, and to plant settlements, whence expeditions coasted along the shores of New England, giving the name of Vinland to the country about Narragansett Bay, and probably reaching even the Bay of New York. These voyages, however, had no...
