This item is printed on demand - Print on Demand Titel. - Essay from the year 2012 in the subject Politics - International Politics - Region: Africa, grade: -, Nnamdi Azikiwe University Awka, course: History, language: English, abstract: The last one decade has not been a happy ten years for Zimbabweans who have had to grapple with the ogres of hunger, diseases, runaway inflation, and uncertainty of body-politic. The crisis which has made their country a pathetic headline in international media broadcasts is not letting up; neither are the efforts being made by Mugabe's friends such as China having the desired impacts. The brooding visage of this crisis have triggered speculations about the country becoming a failed state. For example, in 2008, the U.S Ambassador to Zimbabwe, James McGee, lamented that the country was 'rapidly deteriorating into failed-state status. 1 Of course, these speculations are not unreasonably alarmist because she has already manifested all the known symptoms of state bankruptcy. Inflation has gone out of control; there is anomie, with the people being so unsure what to do with the remainder of their life; famine is endemic, HIV/AIDS is having a field day; and political leadership is atomized, with the members of the coalition government pulling in different directions. 28 pp. Englisch.
